This survey is an indicator of the potential for heavy metal toxicity. Having these symptoms does not mean that an individual definitely has heavy metal toxicity. The manifestation of illness is unique amongst individuals. Because the chemicals accumulate in different parts of the body and at different rates and in different combinations, there is a disturbingly large variety of different chronic illnesses that can result and symptoms can vary greatly between individuals. Questions concerning your overall health and any issues you may have should be directed toward your primary care physician.
